Copyright © 2021 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, a System1 Company "One shot, one kill" is the sniper motto. Accomplishing this would not be possible without the specially modified rifles used by snipers in the field. A sniper rifle such as the M-21 or PSG-1 in the hands of a highly trained sniper can be a deadly weapon from more than a mile away. Army Ranger Sniper used an M-21: "It was a military M-14 with match-grade upgrades -- hollowing out the wood, fiberglass-seated receiver, different trigger mechanisms and optics."Match grade means the rifle has been fine-tuned by a professional gunsmith to ensure the highest possible accuracy and reliability. Match-grade rifles are also used for competitive shooting. A match-grade rifle coupled with handmade, match-grade ammunition ensures the consistency that is so important for a marksman.In addition, sniper rifles sport a free-floating barrel to ensure that the barrel touches the least amount of the weapon possible. This reduces vibration from the recoil. Also, sniper rifles are usually designed or modified to incorporate fiberglass or composite stocks to avoid the effect of humidity on the receiver. Any swelling of the wood can affect the accuracy of the shot.Sniper rifles are generally bolt-action rifles. That means the sniper must load and chamber each round he fires. Once he has fired, he has to clear the shell casing and load another round. Though they are more difficult to operate and have a much slower rate of fire, bolt-action rifles are preferred because they have fewer moving parts than automatics. There are semi-automatic sniper rifles, though, such as the M-21. Army Ranger Sniper had this to say about how the nature of the different rifles can affect a sniper in the field: "If you fire something on a bolt action, you have to reload one, and that movement could give you away. But also, the round flying out of the rifle could give you away on the semi-automatic." In the end, it comes down to the personal preference of each sniper. There are many different types of sniper rifles manufactured by countries all over the world. On average, they cost between $8,000 and $15,000. For an accessible on-the-go bag that lets you go hands-free, sling backpacks combine the best features of backpacks and crossbody bags in one ingenious, bulk-free package. Whether you're looking for a cute yet functional replacement for your purse or something up for your next outdoor adventure, the best sling backpacks have a durable build and come with the storage capacity you need.MaterialIf you plan on using your sling backpack for traveling or trekking, a water-resistant material is going to be vital. That might look like a quick-drying polyester that won't stay damp when you load it full of wet clothes, or you can spring for a luxe option like leather that has been specially treated to repel water. While you'll pay more for leather up front, it is a durable material that will last a lifetime with proper care. If you're in a pinch, a bag with at least a polyester lining will still help keep your gear protected. That said, if you're planning on wearing your sling back for errands around town, style might trump waterproofness, and a cotton or canvas material will deliver the look you want.Capacity & Design FeaturesEven if you don't plan on carrying a computer, a good way to judge the size of the pack is by what kind of tech the bag is designed to accommodate; the picks below range in size from being able to house an iPad Mini up to a 15.6-inch laptop. If hauling your work computer is a top priority, choose a slingpack with a padded sleeve for extra peace of mind. Travel sling backpacks will feature souped-up security features like compartments that open from the back and slash-proof straps, plus extra conveniences like headphone ports for peace of mind when you're navigating a new city. Bags built for an active lifestyle might include a reflective stripe if you're cycling or headed out on a run (and if you're gym-bound, ideally, a shoe compartment to keep the rest of your bag from smelling like dirty sneakers). From the best crossbody backpack on the market to a sling bag with more security features than your front door, these six sling backpacks can carry their weight no matter where the day takes you.1. An Everyday Sling Backpack That Comes In Tons Of ColorsMOSISO Sling BackpackAmazonThis great sling backpack gets top marks from over 3,500 Amazon reviews. Shoppers raved that this lightweight bag was the perfect size (it can fit up to an 11-inch tablet) and that it was great quality for its budget-friendly price. "I bought it for travel but ended up using it for everyday use," one shopper raved, adding, "I love the two netted pouches on the side that I can use to put water bottles, small umbrellas, and other stuff. Its well made and comes it great colors." The polyester canvas is water-resistant and durable, and an additional zippered compartment on the front is ideal for smaller items like your phone, keys and a slim wallet. A buckled closure keeps the main zippered compartment secure, and a dedicated headphone port lets you listen on the go.2. This Vintage-Style Sling Backpack With A Laptop CompartmentWOWBOX Sling Laptop BagAmazonThis laptop sling backpack has a padded compartment with a velcro strap to keep your tech secure and comes in two different sizes to accommodate small and large screens alike (the larger 16-inch pack size is featured here and it can hold up to a 15.6-inch laptop). The exterior is made from durable washed canvas, although it's not listed whether it comes with any water-resistant lining. This stylish pack features vintage rucksack detailing in faux leather, with a reinforced top handle and two options for where to hook the padded shoulder strap. There's a front zippered pocket and two large tablet-sized pockets under the flap and a couple of side pockets. The interior combines a roomy main compartment with plenty of small organizational pockets. "This bag is perfect because I can sling it across my shoulder with my purse and it doesn't fall off," one fan raved. "It has a ton of room inside and it has multiple pockets inside that fit alot of things. I also love the fact that it has a cloth-ish exterior but it's a tough bag that can take some abuse."3. A Mini Sling Backpack With Anti-Theft ProtectionWaterfly Small Travel Sling BackpackAmazonThis travel sling backpack features three layers of antitheft protection: a slash-proof strap with buckles that are to be unscrewed instead of unclipped, a locking zipper, and a large hidden pocket that rests against your body for storing valuables. The cotton-linen material is designed to be water-resistant in case you get caught out in a downpour, and the pack is sized just right; not too large to weigh you down, but still leaves enough room for a notebook and a tablet the size of an iPad Mini. There's even a headphone port so you can listen without exposing your gear. "I bought it for traveling but I've been using it as an everyday bag. It's amaaazingg," one fan raved. "It's so sturdy, compact and light weight...I also love that I can literally stuff it and it still feels light on my shoulder." Another shopper took theirs to an area known for pickpockets and reported, "I felt confident enough in the locking zipper to wear the bag behind me and had no issues. Was able to hold my passport wallet, a bottle of water, granola bars, and other small items without overstuffing. Perfect bag for day trips."4. A Sling Backpack Purse In Pretty Floral Prints Vera Bradley Women's Signature Cotton Sling BackpackAmazonVera Bradley designed this cute sling backpack in the brand's signature quilted cotton with one-of-a-kind floral designs. The natural material comes lined with polyester to protect the interior, and you can pop it into the washing machine in the event of a spill. There are two exterior zippered pockets for last-minute necessities, and a key ring at the top so you never have to dig through your bag. If you're not a fan of florals, also check out this boho-chic canvas sling backpack. "I have finally found bag/purse heaven," one reviewer gushed, calling out the roomy main compartment and thoughtful placement that keeps belongings secure. "Best of all the bag stays on my shoulder and I'm not constantly fiddling with to keep in place. The colors are wonderful and the bag goes with everything." While it doesn't come with a padded compartment for your tablet, reviewers mentioned that it can accommodate a 10-inch tablet.5. This Oversized Sling Backpack Built For The Gym SEEU Large Sling Bag With Shoe PocketAmazonA large-capacity athletic sling backpack with a shoe compartment keeps dirty soles separate from the rest of your goods and lets your kicks air out after spin class. The polyester bag comes with a padded back lined with air mesh for sweat-free wear and features a reflective safety stripe for visibility in low light. The inside can hold clothes, shoes, and tech too — there's a padded sleeve sized to fit up to a 13-inch laptop. Ten pockets ensure there's a place for every single essential. "Great bag. I use it for everything from carrying items into work, the gym, and airplane carry-on; it fits under the seat if not stuffed full. The zippers seem strong and the bag also seems quite durable," one shopper commented. The only thing you might wish for is a more versatile strap — this was built to carry on the right shoulder.6. A Luxe Leather Sling BackpackTexbo Full Grain Leather Crossbody Sling BagAmazonA leather sling backpack made from full-grain Italian hide is a functional luxury you'll own forever. There's a main interior compartment large enough to fit a 9.7-inch tablet and two zippered pockets on the outside, with a snap to keep your belongings secure. A hidden security pocket keeps items like your phone close at hand but stowed safely against you. The leather is water-resistant, and there's a D ring at the top of the strap for clipping on keys. "The quality of all materials and craftsmanship is outstanding," one reviewer gushed. "It is solid, quality leather and as such is fairly heavy compared to nylon or other materials that one may be more used to; if that's a concern, the smaller size might be a better option. I'm loving the larger size, more than adequate and well organized with 7 total compartments of various sizes for the things I usually carry and plenty of room for the occasional water bottle." The brand's more affordably priced smaller size bag is able to hold a 7.9-inch tablet. For an even more budget-friendly option, you can also consider this vegan leather sling backpack. Source: Dish Network Since Sling TV has arrived on Xbox One, we thought we'd offer up some information for any perspective cord cutters out there. As with most technology related to watching TV, Sling TV is kind of confusing. So if you're wondering what Sling TV is and how it works, read on. What is Sling TV? Sling TV is Dish Network's Internet television service. It lets you watch a number of popular TV channels from a variety of devices. How much does Sling TV cost? Sling TV starts at $20 per month. Unlike most cable deals, there are no contracts involved, so you can cancel at any time without having to pay a fee. We should also note that when you sign up online, you get a free seven-day trial period, during which you can cancel without paying anything. Also, Microsoft made a special deal for Xbox One owners with an Xbox Live subscription; they get a free month instead. Source: Sling TV Which channels are included? The basic "Best of Live TV" package has 17 channels at the moment. Here are the big ones: ESPN and ESPN 2 AMC CNN TNT TBS Food Network HGTV Disney You can also tack on addition channel packages for $5 apiece. These packages are focused around the themes of sports, lifestyle, kids, news, and movies. You can see the full channel lineups here. What notable channels are not included? Popular channels that are not available on the service include all of the major broadcast networks (NBC, ABC, CBS, Fox, and The CW), as well as Comedy Central and premium cable channels like HBO and Showtime. What devices are compatible with Sling TV? The list of compatible devices is fairly extensive, and it's still growing. Right now you can watch Sling TV on Windows and Mac computers, iOS and Android smartphones and tablets, Xbox One, Amazon Fire TV, and Roku devices. If you don't have any of those, you can check out the special offers page on the Sling TV website. There, you can get free or discounted devices for signing up and pre-paying for three months of Sling TV service. If you do that, you can get an Amazon Fire TV Stick or Roku Streaming Stick for free. Or, if you prefer a set-top box, you can get $50 toward an Amazon Fire TV or Roku 3. Source: Sling TV How is Sling TV better than cable or satellite? It's probably cheaper, depending on the cable package you're comparing it to. There's no contract, so you can cancel the service at any time with having to pay a penalty. You might already have a compatible device hooked up to your TV, which means you'll have free space in your entertainment stand once you ditch your cable box. You can travel with it. As long as you have a compatible device on hand and a reasonably fast Internet connection, you can watch Sling TV. It has fewer channels, but the channels it has are good ones. No more scanning through hundreds of channels you never watch. How is Sling TV worse than cable or satellite? Again, fewer channels. Although Sling TV may have every channel you watch, there's a good chance it doesn't have channels you want. It has very limited DVR-like functionality. On most of the popular channels, you can't pause, fast forward, or rewind. You just have to tune into the shows you want and watch them live. A few channels allow a feature called "3 Day Replay" that lets you watch shows within three days of their air date. A smaller batch of channels let you watch shows that aired in the past seven days. Still, this limited functionality is a step below cable and satellite. Follow Chris on Twitter @CheatSheetChris Check out Tech Cheat Sheet on Facebook More from Tech Cheat Sheet
