Kingkiller Chronicles The meeting with Kostrel After a long time, Bast returns to the Lightning tree again, and when he arrives he realizes that there was no child waiting for him with the intention that he advise him to face his daily situations, which caused a breath. As this was the proper way to do it, the boy also circled the tree times in the opposite direction, with a doubtful meaning of destruction, pensive with intense thoughts and memories, which he could not share, but which came to memory and gave him touches in the heart. Well, nothing more and nothing less than Rike, who was a little older compared to the other children, he was a little over 12 years old, he was tall and quiet, thin, he had sunburned skin, worn and dirty clothes and with a bad smell. Bast gives him a salute just like he did with the other kids; although his tone was different, she wasn't happy to see him, in fact she didn't even want to talk to him. She saw the footsteps approaching her and although it was difficult to smile while playing the flute, our witty Bast managed to get the pretty girl's full attention. Then Bast looks at him seriously and says "What do you want to do?" and he replies "I want revenge, but I can't find a way to do it." Then Bast tells him a plan, which apparently was harmless, however it was going to give the boy the opportunity to feel that he would take revenge on his brother for having kissed his platonic love and although at first it seemed a little harmless, because for he the fault was greater, however after the explanation he thought it was enough to satisfy his desire for revenge. Still preoccupied with finding Riky, Bast returned to the Lightning Tree, trying to get his thoughts in order. While Bast said with a huge smile, "It's beautiful!" After much exchange of words there was a moment of silence that was uncomfortable for Bast, but for the innkeeper it was pleasant and necessary and then other things are told and suddenly something diverts Reshi's gaze, who asks Bast about his hand wound, and where Bast thought hard to answer, because this innkeeper was really hard to be told. The morning had passed and Bast was worried about everything he should and wanted to do, two things that had a relationship with each other, the afternoon passes between birds and bees. The boy told him that if he wanted to, he would do it himself, but that it was not correct and that later he would not be able to look him in the eye, but that he wanted to do it because he could not stand all the suffering that he, his mother and his brothers were experiencing. Bast is considered a beginner of Kvothe, and at this moment there is the opportunity to get to know him a little more, since it shows his way of reasoning and proceeding, it can also be seen in a certain mischievous way, reaching what he sets out to do, manipulating delicately the impression that the community of inhabitants of the town have with him. I also cordially invite you to learn about the interesting author biography Mario Vargas Llosa. This book was published in the anthology Roques (in English), on June 17, by Bantam Spectra, in the United States of America. He had a loving expression; but at the same time shrewd, as if she had managed to take the moon and then taste it to pieces. When he reached the top of the hill, there was the famous Lightning tree, which was called that way by most of the inhabitants of the town, mostly by children, which was an old trunk without branches, not so tall, which long ago had peeled off its bark, and as a result of the inclement sun, this hollow trunk was seen in a light color, like the color of an ancient bone. The Fae When Kostrel said these words, Bast felt like a strong cold air that touched his stomach, it was as if his insides suddenly turned into a mass of iron and he was left without saliva for a second. Bast after thinking a bit replied, "I can do it, but it will cost you a lot, so think about how much you want this," to which the thoughtful boy showed a face that the deal was done. The baker's son The boy who approached him was the baker's son, who looked very well dressed, although a little fat and had a bandage on his hand, as he had cut it with a knife in an accident at home. Strong feelings were observed for his young age and then the boy told him angrily that he had observed his brother kissing the girl he liked and that he felt that he had betrayed him, because he had sincerely confessed his feelings to her. At the time of canceling, he drew Bast a map, locating the address where a wild hive was located, which was to the liking of our young friend. It was about an hour later to wake up as a visitor by the name of Kostrel was approaching and Bast was pleased that he had come to see him. When he managed to get out without anyone noticing, his lips showed a smile, at that moment he felt free to do what he wanted, getting away with it as he often did. «The lightning tree» is a book by Patrick Rothfuss, for many a short novel that deals with the story of Bast, which is one of the characters in the «Kingslayer Chronicle». Bast perked up for a moment throwing stones into the nearby stream, taking some time to try to clear his mind by watching the water running down the slope of the hill in front of the ittimolit and after the ritual, Bast allows the children to approach and when speaking, he told her with a fearful voice, that he needed a lie, to cover up a mistake he had committed. Kostrel explains to him that he is asking him that question, since he was not from the town, and during the time he had known him he had noticed that he knew about many things and that he was not like the others. «The lightning tree» highlights the setting in guide rock, since the performance between each of the characters in the plot focuses on the time before the chronicler arrives at the scene, and exposes the daily movements in Bast's life, from dawn until nightfall. This boy told Bast that a boy named Rike wanted to see him and that he was the same young man who had gone to look for him at the inn, but it was obvious that he refused to see him and in the end he sent him a message that I wasn't going to talk to him. Bast replies that he fell out of a tree, and this wasn't a total lie to his friend; Since he certainly fell out of a tree, but at a different time. When the day ended, all the clients had already left, there was a tranquility in the inn, the day was almost over and Reshi and Bast sat in the kitchen to prepare for dinner, to finish everything during their day, this was for the apprentice and the master a whole party. The ritual that only the young man understood. The young man recognized that the way in which he was turning was against the order and normality of this world, when he made the turn it seemed that destiny was winding and unwinding, in an alternative movement and he realized that only he was who fully understood that. A little before Bast leaves, he tells him to buy some things for dinner that night, for which the innkeeper expected many guests, and then tells him that a young man from the town had come looking for him, however, he very seriously expresses that he has no idea who it is. The book "The lightning tree" is a charming novel, excellently written, that captures the reader's attention from the beginning to the end of the story. Going a little further down the road, he could see that there were two children who were playing with an old ittimolito that was lying at the foot of the small hill. If this post was to your liking, let you know the best reasons you have to read the books of the famous author in literary works Rick Riordan, has a variety of books that are of great interest to all types of audiences, enter now and discover what they are. After explaining to Bast what happened, he came up with an elaborate ploy, just to avoid being called out by his parents for doing something they told him not to do. For the girl, and he was not interested, kissing with his platonic love. Observing Rike, there was bitterness in his voice and in his eyes, he handed the book to Bast and commented, "I really didn't want to have the opportunity to speak to which Bast replied, "you broke the rules". Patrick Rothfuss book Undoubtedly, it can be said that Patrick Rothfuss's book «The lightning tree» is a charming and pleasant story, which is highly recommended for being entertaining and very easy to read and where the Bast character enthusiast will get a high dose of peculiarity that will give a touch of pleasure to his feasible curiosity to know about the peculiarities of the life of this man, sometimes affectionate, sometimes mysterious, but always attractive; Bast however, is a very fascinating man, enigmatic, a bit dark and arcane. The history "The lightning tree" by Patrick Rothfuss, is similar to the other emerging story of the trilogy, called «The music of silence» and from that story we can say that the most visible features is that the organization of the plot and its development are totally independent of the "Kingslayer Chronicle", it is not completely essential to have read the other books to understand the story, but it is advisable to have knowledge of the first book "The Name of the Wind" so as not to lose the background of the story. Patrick Rothfuss And how is Bast considered? Then between the mountains that surrounded the valley, there was a young and beautiful woman, she was the one who took the group of sheep to graze, and since it was necessary for her to be aware of her sheep, she sat down in the shade to rest. The vengeful fighter When the baker's son leaves, the other boy who was waiting enters and when Bast observed that he was approaching he imagined as if he saw a storm, he had an irritable look full of rage and longing for revenge. Harmless plan The harmless plan was to urinate in his shoes, so that the smell would remain on his feet and of course that bad smell would be impregnated for three days, which would cause the ridicule of his friends and the rejection of the girl in question. He also left him the address where the residents of the town had their alembic with which the account of his debt was completely settled. Kostrel told him that he knew where a pretty girl Bast knew used to go to bathe; However, he offers to make a deal, he told her that he would share this information if Bast answered clearly, precisely, sincerely and bluntly three questions that he had in mind. At the moment a strong voice is heard coming from the inn, a thick voice, calling him with authority, which made him return to reality in one fell swoop and he prepared to re-enter in a hurry, walking very fast with the radiance that characterizes it as if it were dancing when walking. In this wonderful work we are going to know the life and adventure of Bast, a loyal friend and admirer of Kvothe, who is a very studied and academically prepared man, who has passed through the university and who was given an iron Sudrabin, to this is appropriated properties to capture good luck. After doing this, and completely immersed in his thoughts, he continued on his way, with the force that characterizes him, observing and enjoying a tasty warm weather, but not much, cool and calm, since it had not rained in a long time. This plot took place in the town where Kvothe hides, who in order not to be recognized changes his name and finds himself discreetly living in an inn, leading a life in peace and completely calm, which for Bast's taste would be a little boring and who would like him to continue his life of adventures, where his skills and subtlety stand out when it comes to facing each challenge that arises. «The lightning tree» This author shows that he wants to complete the trilogy of the «Kingslayer Chronicle» which is made up of the works «The Name of the Wind», «The Fear of Man» and «The Stone Doors». This ittimolit in its time was a subtly carved "guide rock", and of large size, which served travelers as a rest, since when it is found on the side of the road it is customary for those who travel and pass by to ask themselves when arriving at the structure, which path it has been traveling and which would be the most appropriate to correctly follow its journey. This character expresses appearances of his life that cooperate to understand him, as well as his motivations and we observe him a little sincere, taking action with ease, transmitting grace wherever he goes, and in everything he does with the charm and characteristic ease, but on a higher level, this means in other simpler words, wasting grace that pleases and entangles at the same time. Bast reacts in a childish way, showing anger, since he didn't think it was fair that his teacher would think that his time was not being used, and then he tells Reshi that today he had learned many things, like Mrs. Finally when Bast enters, he hands him a book with the leather cover, with the young man used to have almost always in his hands, "almost forgot" he told her. The narrow path to the lightning tree Very early Bast diligently manages to leave the inn, leaving in a way that no one notices, that is why without making a sound he manages to pass some obstacles that were in his way, which directed him to the open field, to the path narrow, which leads straight to the hill, where at the top is «The lightning tree». Bast saw her immediately and approached her using her grace and charm, the beauty of the girl was impressive and when she saw that she was approaching with a flute she had no choice but to listen to the Bast's musical twist and although she wanted to do it mattered. As the children were watching him, the agile Bast takes his time to reach the top and sit down to rest next to the Lightning tree just like he always did. There is a literary work that I invite you to know and that I am sure may be of interest to you and it is called, know what that story is about. The innkeeper tells him to please be very careful and suggests that since he has a lot of free time, he dedicates it to study so that he improves his education, which the innkeeper said with great authority. It is important to highlight that the author gave strength to the structure in very few pages and where we can see that they are very easy to read when reading. Cam like someone who is going to rest after a hard job. When this happened, the young man finally sat down and leaned his back against the tree and subtly placed his precious book on a nearby stone, where the sun shone on the book and highlighted its beautiful golden letters on the cover, in which if you could read, Celum tincture. Giving it a touch of importance, he began to slowly climb the top, like a person with a lot of wisdom about the universe, and owner of time. The day ended Many more things happened during this day, but let's go straight to the end to see where this story ends. After Bast attended many more people during the day, he advised them, he helped each one in their different situations, missing to tell: water flowers, Martin's distillery, Rike returns to the lightning tree, Rike's mother, another round of questions at the lightning tree, lessons and on the way to the inn, we go straight to the end to find out how this story ended. Bast after calming him down told him and what exactly do you want him to do or go away? As he continued on his way, he observed a group of sheep that were looking for food, because the lack of rain made it difficult to find a good place. The kingdom of the fata The world of fae creatures and other subgroups of mysterious wild creatures that have supernatural powers, is what they call the kingdom of the fata, where a reality that has nothing to do with the physical laws of this land is experienced, in where fantastic beings become reality and their lives are lived according to the desires of their hearts and there is much more to tell. Before finalizing the deal, Bast tells him that it is forbidden to ask about the boss, since he himself had placed trust in him, to which Kostrel replies that there was only one thing that mattered to him and that was that he answered only with the truth. The boy leaves pleased and with a plan in his mind and prepared to carry it out to the end, then he would have to cancel Bast, as they had previously agreed by means of a pact, so with the poor content in his pocket and the promise to deliver two sweet rolls later, the deal was sealed. Going through his father's fault. This short story was set in the fantastic world of "The Four Corners", a world where unimaginable creatures cohabit, each with an incredible story. The lightning tree In this story, the life of Bast is narrated and the daily adventures of a captivating young man are introduced to us in an attractive and very simple way. Reshi asks Bast what he will tell him what he had done during the day, to which Bast with a big smile, replies that he had found the place where Amberlee bathes, he was very excited to talk to him about these things and Reshi didn't even know which of the young women in the village was he talking about. What I want is for him to go away, but not to come back. There we will be given to discover its nature and its estimation in this complete story. In the end they close the deal, and Bast leaned back to hear what the boy had in mind to which the boy replied... I want to know about the fae! just tell me to know the truth of this in detail. Finally after his usual paraphernalia and upon reaching the tree he tapped the hollow trunk with his fingertips with a thoughtful and mysterious expression and drew the circumference of the trunk cornering slowly in a clockwise direction. Nothing more and nothing less than the innkeeper, a man with an appearance of exhaustion, astonishing, even without spirits with a rough countenance but with a vulgar appearance which could make him go unnoticed. Who was the person calling him?... At the top where the tree layer would once have been, it was darkened black by fire, long since burned. Performer Kvothe, a skillful and playful man who understands the magical arts, is a friend of Bast, who is the main character of the story. The innkeeper Long before the innkeeper turns around, young Bast is already hurrying toward the dawn light, like someone in a hurry to meet his destiny. He made a circle around the tree, lay down and immediately fell asleep. had a beehive and had trapped the queen mother wasp. It is worth noting that Bast was one of the secondary characters in the first book of the "Kingkiller Chronicle", and this time he reviews a day in the life of this mysterious sage, mysterious and educated being. In a way he knew they continued with their treatment, in a way, Bast liked the young man's intelligence, since the curiosity he had greatly exceeded that of the others he knew, he was wise and wanted to know about things that Bast thought or knew and sometimes shared. Rike lasted a while begging for him to attend to him, but Bast didn't want to listen to him, however in the end Bast felt something in his body when he saw him cry and tremble in a mixture between rage and fear and then he decides to listen to him and then the boy took a breath and he told him, I want you to get rid of my dad!, since his father was a drunk and despicable man and many other things. Bast takes a quick breath pretending nothing happened, telling him to ask her a specific question. However Bast managed to hide it, showing not what he really felt, but feigning laziness, lethargy and even an annoyed face and he proceeded to respond to the words of his friend. However, what he felt was the opposite, Bast tried to get the attention of the beautiful young woman and when he walked a little closer he stumbled and this was what made her notice him. Williams, Rike's mother. A hiding place for the book, away from the Lightning tree Bast seeing that there were no children waiting to consult him about their problems, he got up and walked aimlessly, he was accompanied only by his thoughts and he felt free to do what he felt like doing, so what he did was eat fruit and drink water of the river, where to leave hidden his beloved treasure. Riky arrives at the Lightning Tree Bast noticed that there were no children waiting for him and suddenly he heard a whistle and something far away from where he was he saw a figure move and do you know who it was? by Patrick Rothfuss The Kingkiller Chronicle Series 0.5 - How Old Holly Came to Be (2013) (in the anthology Unfettered) 0.6 - The Lightning Tree (2014) (in the anthology Rogues) 1 - The Name of the Wind (2007) 2 - The Wise Man's Fear (2011) 2.5 - The Children of Silence (2014) 3 - The Way of the Wind (2022) If you are interested in this book, I invite you to read "The Lightning Tree" and "The Kingkiller Chronicle", which are the first two books of the Kingkiller Chronicle Series.
